

never meet again

no time like the present

meeting waste reduced ... by a process of elimination

why use the metaverse to make even more meetings ?

never meet again

no time like the present

why not, instead, a real metaverse use-
case? eliminate the waste of meetings –
whenever we can ...

never meet again
no time like the present

the journey of many meetings:

what we plan to talk about what we actually talk about what we claim we talked about

what benefits aren't obtained

never meet again
no time like the present

the greatest pain of many meetings:

what we plan to talk about
what we actually talk about
what we claim we talked about
what benefits aren't obtained

never meet again
no time like the present

The background of the image shows two humanoid robots sitting at a small white table. The robot on the left is holding a coffee cup. The robot on the right is looking towards the first robot. On the table, there is a small yellow vase with flowers and a white cup. The background is a solid orange color. Two large, overlapping circles are superimposed on the image, each containing text. The left circle is light blue and the right circle is light orange. The robots are white with grey joints and are sitting on green chairs.

the pain is considerable
but the reason is
just one:

we have to meet
each other ...
yes, meet!

what if we used the
metaverse to
*reduce meeting
waste ...*

but not by trying to make
meetings
better.

not that way.

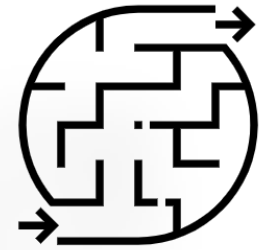

The background of the slide features a 3D illustration of two humanoid robots sitting at a small, light-colored table. The robot on the left is holding a coffee cup. On the table, there is a small yellow vase with flowers and a white cup. The robot on the right is looking towards the left. They are seated on green armchairs against a warm orange wall. Two large, overlapping circles are superimposed on the scene: a light blue one on the left and a light orange one on the right, each containing text.

simply, rather, by
never needing to meet again ...

or – at least –
NEVER ... at the same time.

never meet again

no time like the present

contact: mil williams – mil@betterbiz.me

meeting waste reduced ... by a process of elimination